Korean Natural Farming in Your Backyard

June 21, 2014 (Saturday) 6:30 to 8:30pm 2nd Floor

Korean Natural Farming (KNF) is an agricultural method that involves collecting and growing indigenous microorganisms (IMO) and reintroducing them into a self-sustaining, closed-loop, ecosystem. Urban farmers use this simple yet effective method to increase soil quality, fertility, and production without chemicals. This practical hands-on demonstration will be led by certified KNF Instructors Dave Mikami, Joe McGinn, and Hiilani Shibata.
